PSE Mental Health Policies & Procedures: Developing A Framework

Draft Template for Use by Postsecondary Institutions

This draft template is designed to be considered and adapted to suit each institution in the development of the policies and procedures necessary to promote positive mental health within each community. This framework is for consideration only. Each institution will adapt as suitable for the individual needs of the institution.

Students and persons with mental health disabilities or concerns have experienced longstanding discrimination, stigmatization and social exclusion in Canada and across the world. Research estimates that one in five Canadian adults will experience a mental illness or addiction in their lifetime. In recognition of this, it is imperative that PSE institutions are committed to not only protecting the rights and privileges of persons living with mental health disabilities or concerns, but that it works to prevent further discrimination, stigmatization or social exclusion within the post-secondary environment.

The pan-northern consortium of colleges promotes positive mental health for all college communities and its stakeholders (students, faculty, staff, admin, alumni & board members). Bridging the Distance college partners would like to emphasize heightened concern within our northern campuses given the additional unique challenges faced in addressing mental health concerns on our campuses for First Nations, Métis and Inuit learners, and all distance learners, the diverse and vast geographic area served, unique language barriers and limited access to mental health supports and services within our communities.

It is recognized that the academic and non-academic systemic structure, mission, vision, values, policies and procedures of each PSE institution is the vehicle/platform with which to drive forward; providing clear mental health guidelines and operational strategies.

The development and language of specific mental health policies and procedures for each PSE institution will differ, but the “spirit” to protect the rights and dignity of persons living with mental health disabilities/mental health concerns in addressing discrimination, stigmatization and social exclusion will be the common focus as the best practice approach for PSE institutions.

Each PSE institution will utilize different language, headings or topics for their own policies and procedures, but included you will find some suggestions or guidelines for developing policies and procedures for PSE Mental Health.

Check out the following websites for excellent resources to get you started on creating your own policy & procedures relating to mental health:

PSE Mental Health Policies & Procedures: Developing A Framework

To enhance your PSE institution’s existing policies and procedures manual by incorporating a mental health lens:

- Consider adding the following policies from this framework in the “Organizational” section where you might have policies/statements/topics such as: Strategic Corporate Vision, Mission/Values, Code of Conduct,.. etc.

  o Equity and Inclusion
  o Staff/Faculty Rights & Responsibilities
  o Student Rights & Responsibilities
  o Student/Service User Complaints

Key Considerations for Implementing Mental Health Policies & Procedures within your PSE Institution:

Recognizing that each PSE institution will have various levels of administration and policy decision makers, it is imperative that the appropriate contact persons, departments and channels are accessed to initiate, develop, implement and evaluate mental health policies on campus.

This is a collective effort of all PSE/college stakeholders not the sole responsibility of the highest ranking person or group of individuals within your organization. Some PSE institutions will opt to strike an advisory group, committee or working group to initiate, educate and champion this initiative/effort. Others will work with their Quality Improvement or Academic, Administration, Counselling or Student Success Departments. Yet others will incorporate student voices and participation through student councils/student unions. Optimally, a best practice approach would utilize a blend of all PSE stakeholder involvement; garnering a cross-section of viewpoints, perspectives and experiences.

Some key considerations noted below, when planning to develop/implement policies and procedures through a mental health lens, have been highlighted on the BTD website – “Frameworks for Setting Up Campus Supports” http://bridgingthedistance.com/docs/Framework%20for%20Setting%20up%20Campus%20Supports.pdf

As well, review guiding questions below from the “CACUSS Post-Secondary Student Mental Health: Guide to a Systemic Approach” (2013).
“To what degree does the institution believe that it is responsible for promoting student mental health as a requirement for integrated student development and learning?”

“How is student mental health supported within an institution’s strategic goals and resource allocation?”

“How is the institution’s commitment to promoting student well-being communicated to faculty, staff and students?

To what degree does the institution engage faculty, staff, and students in defining their role in supporting student mental health?”

“Are current practices supportive of student mental health?

“How are students’ voices and perspectives represented in institutional structure, planning, policy, practices and processes related to student mental health?”

“What resources are dedicated to ensure that the voices of students are represented, including those with lived experience of mental health concerns?”

To ensure a mental health perspective policy approach, you might add/include the following policies/sections:

- Accessibility (AODA) Policy
- Accommodations for Students with MH disabilities/concerns
- Aggressive or Threatening Behaviour
- Child Abuse Reporting/ Documentation
- Collecting & Storing Student Data
- Concerns with Student Capacity/ Consent of Designate
